Table of Contents

1 Introduction 8
  1.1 A Literary-Commercial Phenomenon 8
  1.2 The Authors and Their Works 14
  1.3 Relevant Criticism 18
  1.4 The Guiding Questions 23

2 The Rise and Demise of the Self 27
  2.1 The Rise of the Imperial Self of Modernity 28
    2.1.1 From the Origins to the Modernist Self 28
    2.1.2 The Emergence of the Inner-directed Character in America 31
      2.1.2.1 The Puritan Heritage 33
      2.1.2.2 The Legacy of the Frontier 36
  2.2 The Self on the Retreat 38
    2.2.1 The Appearance of the Other-directed Character in Postwar America 38
    2.2.2 Narcissism and the Minimal Self in the Contemporary Consumer Society 41
  2.3 The Self Dethroned and Shattered 50
    2.3.1 Social Saturation and Multiphrenia 50
    2.3.2 Ontological Uncertainty 53

3 The Crisis of Mimesis 61
  3.1 Art as Representation 61
  3.2 Challenging the Premises of Representation 63
  3.3 Fictional Responses to the Crisis of Representation 66

4 Literature and the Marketplace 75
  4.1 The Author and the Work in Mass-Market Publishing Today 75
  4.2 The Eradication of the Premises of the Traditional Modernist Split between Art and Mass Culture 78
    4.2.1 Aesthetic Essence 80
    4.2.2 Unity 83
    4.2.3 Complexity 84
    4.2.4 Subversiveness 87
    4.2.5 Uniqueness and Individuality 94

5 Ex-Centrics: Slaves of New York 98
  5.1 Ambivalent Ex-centricity 99
    5.1.1 Dependence-Based Gender Relations 100
8.3 Self-alienation 301
8.4 Social Isolation 305
8.5 Reality Testing Not Always Successful 308
8.6 The Deceitful Attraction of a Minimalist Ethic 313
8.7 A Novel of Initiation as a Parody of an Infantile Society 322

9 A Pioneer, a Puritan, and a Renegade: Brightness Falls 332

9.1 Russell: A Pioneer 334
  9.1.1 A “Perpetual Adolescent” 334
    9.1.1.1 The Remains of an Adolescent Self 334
    9.1.1.2 The Promise of Effortless Gain 337
    9.1.1.3 The Male Struggle for Supremacy 339
  9.1.2 The Costs of Participation in the Power Struggle 343
    9.1.2.1 Apprentice and Usurper 343
    9.1.2.2 Intimacy and Competition 347
    9.1.2.3 Ethical Restraints and Animal Desires 353
  9.1.3 Growing Up and the Experience of Loss 359
  9.1.4 The Heritage of the Frontier 365

9.2 Corrine: A Puritan 371
  9.2.1 A Holistic View of the Self and Society 371
    9.2.1.1 A Lack of Self-Reliance 372
    9.2.1.2 Interconnectedness, Isolation, and a Sense of Doom 373
    9.2.1.3 Self-Realization in Social Responsibility 377
    9.2.1.4 Patriarchal Ideals of Self-Realization as the Main Cause of Social Strife 380
  9.2.2 Inner Emigration 384
    9.2.2.1 Turning Her Back on the Financial World 385
    9.2.2.2 Renouncing Highlife 388
  9.2.3 The Puritan’s Sense of Community and Damnation 395

9.3 Jeff: A Renegade and Tragic Hero 397
  9.3.1 Protest 398
    9.3.1.1 Emancipation from His Upper-Middle-Class Family Background 398
    9.3.1.2 Russell and Corrine as the Role Models of the Perfect Consumers 399
    9.3.1.3 Ambivalence vis-à-vis the Consumer Society 403
    9.3.1.4 The Hospital as a Cultural Gatekeeper 406
  9.3.2 Withdrawal and Loss of Control 413
9.3.2.1 Withdrawal 413
9.3.2.2 Seeking Gratification of Insatiable Desire 415
9.3.2.3 Loss of Control 417
9.3.3 The Rebirth of the Social Self 418
9.3.4 A Renegade and Tragic Hero 423

9.6 A Growing-Up Novel about a Nation Coming of Age 426
9.6.1 An Ailing Society 426
9.6.2 A Maturing Nation Looks into a Cautiously Promising Future 430

10 Conclusion 437
10.1 The Self in Trouble 437
10.2 “The Age Deserves an Image of Its Accelerated Grimace” 440
10.3 Literature Goes Pop 443

Works Cited 445